

International Conference on Standardization of Language Resources and Translation and Interpreting (2018)

(Hangzhou, China – 16-17 June, 2018)

The fast pace of economic development in China has meant that translation and interpreting services have become increasingly important. These services are essential for Chinese companies to sell its products and services globally and for other countries to sell in China, manufacturing and other industrial sectors, as well as government and non-government institutes and organizations.

ISO TC 37 is the ISO technical committee which deals with language and terminology. To coincide with their annual meetings, which will take place from 10 to 15 June, 2018 in Hangzhou, the "International Conference on Standardization of Language Resources and Translation and Interpreting (2018)" will take place from 16 to 17 June, 2018. This event will follow immediately after the ISO/TC37 meetings and at the same venue.

The conference is geared to serve as a platform for international communication and exchange among individuals, organizations, and companies who are interested in language resource management, translation services and interpreting services as well as in standardization. Presentations, workshops and panel discussions are organized in the following four tracks:

- Quality of Products and Translation Services
- Standards for Translation Service Providers (TSPs)
- Language Resource Management for Manufacturing and in the Full Life Cycle of a Product
- Education and training for translation services in China and the world
